KNOW YOUR FAITH

By Lynne Wardach

Myrrhbearers

IMAGINE

It's a beautiful day. You and all of your best friends are having fun in the park when, suddenly, a bully comes by and starts harassing you. He won't stop, and eventually, he pushes you to the ground. When you lift your head, to your surprise, everyone runs away to hide, and you find that you are left alone. You're helpless, scared, maybe even defeated. Then... someone special comes.

They help you to your feet.

They dry your tears and dress your wounds

They assure you that you are valued and loved no matter what...just because you're YOU.

How do you feel about this friend?

When we read the Holy Scriptures about the night that Jesus was arrested, we see that this is precisely what happened to Him. All His friends and disciples were afraid, so they ran away from Him and hid.

They were afraid they would be crucified, too! When they saw what happened to Jesus, they became confused and began to doubt Christ and His mission. They asked themselves,

"Was He really the Son of God? "

"Why was He so helpless? "

"Maybe He wasn't Who they thought He was?"

They were so shocked and confused that they stood by and did nothing as Jesus was arrested, assaulted, and finally hung on the cross. When it was all over His Body was quickly placed in a tomb with a big stone in front of it, without anyone to mourn or to honor it...but then the Myrrhbearers, came.

WHO WERE THE MYRRHBEARERS?

They were the women disciples who also witnessed everything that happened to Jesus, and I assume they were also afraid, but they did something extraordinary...they loved Him anyway, and that love conquered their fear!

Even if others thought Christ was a failure, a criminal, maybe even a fraud, the women remembered what He preached and the kind of life He lived. They remembered Who He WAS and loved Him for it, no matter what. So they showed respect and love by anointing his lifeless Body when none of the disciples could.

HERE'S SOMETHING INTERESTING:

Jesus taught us to think of His Church as we think of His Body. When St. Paul wrote his first letter to the people of Corinth, he told them they were all individual members of the body of Christ, each with his own specific job and function!

1 Corinthians 12:27 Now you are Christ's body, and individually members of it.

This means that each person in the Church has their own role to play, and each is as important as the others, and no two are alike.

Just like your brain is very different but just as important to your body as your heart,
Just like your eye is very different, but just as important to your body as your ear,
Just as your hand is very different but just as important to your body as your foot...

We must know that what YOU are called to do for the Church is very different but just as important as what the priest, or even the bishop, is called to do!

That love motivated them to leave the comfort of their homes before the break of day to anoint His lifeless Body with myrrh, but...

WHAT'S MYRRH?

Practically speaking, it's the dried sap from a thorny tree that grows in Northeast Africa and Southwest Asia. When the tree is injured, it bleeds with little droplets of sap, which, when dry, are harvested from the tree. These dried droplets are then steam distilled to form a sticky, sweet-smelling, amber-colored syrup that looks like thick honey.

Myrrh oil is a great cleaning agent because it kills mold and bacteria.

It is helpful to clean wounds because it kills germs that can cause infection.

It helps fight pain because it contains compounds that tell your brain you aren't in pain, even if you are!

AND...Ancient people used it to anoint and honor the bodies of their dead because it had all those excellent properties.

But because of their great devotion to Him and their trust in the Truth He embodied, the fact that He was dead didn't matter to the holy women. They set out to anoint His Body anyway with the most excellent intentions because that's all the women could do.

So, they went forth before sunrise, in the cold and darkness. They didn't wait for daylight and better conditions because their love for Him made this the first action of their day.

They knew the Roman soldiers would be there, and they most likely had reason to fear the soldiers, but in their devotion to Jesus, they didn't consider the danger. Great love does that to a person.

They would most likely have needed help to roll the stone away, but even that obstacle was not too daunting for them. They were determined to do this loving service for the Body of Christ, no matter the cost....and they were met with an awesome surprise. They found He had accepted their gift even before they had offered it.

WE CAN BE LIKE THEM!

We can anoint His Body, the Church, out of love for Jesus because we KNOW Who He is!

We are not afraid because... we know what happened after three days in the tomb!

At the crucifixion, these holy women were the followers who stood by to witness Jesus' death, console His mother, and bring cleansing ointment to anoint His poor Body.

By their example, we are called to bring order, healing, and refreshment to the Church in many wonderful ways!

We can do things to help cleanse the Church from stains, heal and disinfect her wounds, and alleviate her pain...this is our spiritual myrrh.

I urge you to gather up your courage and get ready to identify your myrrh, be commissioned as modern myrrhbearers, and anoint the Body of Christ with your very own myrrh!

THIS IS THE MOST EXCITING PART:

When you are not afraid to offer love to Christ's Body, the Church, you would expect Him to be pleased with your efforts and reward you for them! Remember that because of their selfless actions and respect for the Body of Christ, God granted that the Holy Myrrhbearers would be the first to witness His resurrection.

YOU may be the first to witness a resurrection of His Church! What a gift!!!

BE NOT AFRAID to do the work God has planned for you!

St Joanna the Myrrh-Bearer

Dearest children,

Joanna leaned forward with interest as she listened to John speak about the arrival of the Messiah her ancestors waited hundreds of years for.

"I am the voice of one calling in the wilderness, 'make straight the way of the Lord!'" John exclaimed.

Joanna nodded. When King Herod Antipas visited other cities, a new road had to be built so he and his servants could travel.

The builders took pains to make the highway as level and straight as possible. But what was the "way" or road of the Lord that John had to "make straight?"

John looked at Joanna through the bars he stood behind. His hair was wild and his body gaunt from fasting all the time. But there was a beautiful light shining through his eyes, and his entire being radiated love. "I speak of repentance, of walking the straight and narrow path of righteousness."

Joanna saw John meant every word about repenting of sin. He believed in it so strongly that he fasted daily and put himself at risk. John had been imprisoned by King Antipas because he had the nerve to tell him that he should not have stolen his brother Phillip's wife, Herodias! However, even King Antipas admired John. Joanna, as the wife of King Antipas' household steward, was able to sit at John's feet even as he was in prison. He told the household amazing things: The Messiah, Jesus, had come!!

John smiled with joy. "The Messiah! He cures the lame and heals the blind. I saw him and baptized Him in the Jordan river. The Spirit of the Lord descended upon Him, and the Father's voice said plainly that Jesus is the Beloved Son of God. There can be no doubt. You must go to Jesus when I am gone. He will heal you too."

Joanna thanked John. She had been in pain for a very long time. She loved that he had hope for her healing.

Not long after, her husband, Khouza, came home earlier than he should have. King Antipas was having a birthday celebration and her husband was supposed to stay out all night at the party.

"Wife," he said, "I have hard news for you."

Joanna looked up. Sorrow was in Khouza's eyes.

"At the king's birthday party," Khouza told her, "Salome danced, the daughter of that wicked Herodias. Everyone had too much to drink, and the dance was not a good one, but it made the guests go crazy over her. King Antipas wanted to show off for the crowd. He offered Salome anything she wanted, even up to half his kingdom."

The horror of the offer dawned on Joanna: "What did the girl ask for? Why are you so sad?"

"I am sad for you. I was never an admirer of the baptizer, John, but Salome asked for his head on a plate, and King Antipas had to give it to her or he would have looked like a fool in front of everyone."

"What?! No! John is dead?"

"Didn't I just tell you so? His head was chopped off and brought to the party on a platter and given to Salome. I watched her skip off with the head and give it to Herodias. Salome looked like she was giving her mother a bouquet of flowers she'd been awarded. The party is ruined. King Antipas is in mourning."

Joanna wept.

The next day Herodias dumped the holy John's head in the field for the animals to destroy. The animals wouldn't touch it, but Joanna lovingly gathered it up in fresh linens.

She approached Khouza. "Husband, I buried the head of John on the Mount of Olives. He told me once that I should go to Jesus and He would heal me. I would like to tell Jesus the sorrowful news."

"Go," Khouza replied. "God be with you."

It took Joanna several days to get to where Jesus was. She met with Jesus' followers, who told Jesus about John's death. Jesus got into a boat alone, full of grief at the loss of his cousin.

"What should I do?" Joanna asked Jesus' disciples, as she watched Jesus sail away.

"Stay." Mary from Magdala told her. "The Teacher will return."

Joanna sat and waited. As she waited, a crowd gathered. Thousands of people, many who were sick.

Jesus returned, and when He saw the crowd, He began to preach about the kingdom of God. Joanna sat and listened. She could easily believe that Jesus was the Messiah. He spoke with the authority of God. But before she knew it, night was approaching.

Jesus' disciples came to Him.

"Teacher, please. It is getting late, we are far from the city, and no one has eaten. Send the people away."

Joanna felt a knot in her stomach. While Jesus preached, she had forgotten that she had not eaten either, and she had been traveling all day!

Jesus asked with a twinkle in His eyes, "Where shall we buy bread for these people to eat?"

Philip, one of Jesus' followers, answered him, "It would take more than half a year's wages to buy enough bread for each person to have a single bite!"

Another disciple, Andrew, had his hand on the shoulder of a boy carrying a basket. "This boy offers five small barley loaves and two fish, but that cannot feed so many people!"

Joanna rose, thinking to hurry to the marketplace to beat the crowd and approaching night. In addition, she needed to find lodging.

Jesus surprised her by saying: "Have the people sit down."

Jesus took the loaves from the boy, and looking up to Heaven, gave thanks and broke the bread. He then had his followers give bread to those who were seated. He did the same with the fish. Joanna ate her fill, as did everyone else there.

Jesus said to his disciples: "Gather the pieces that are left so nothing is wasted." Twelve baskets were filled with all the pieces that were left over.

Joanna was amazed. It was just as John had told her. Jesus began to heal the sick, blessing the people who lined up in front of him. Joanna herself joined the line to receive the Teacher's blessing, and was healed. She had been in pain for so long that it was strange and wonderful to suddenly be free.

Jesus slipped away up the mountain by Himself. The crowd was disappointed, but Joanna was at peace. She knew now that she would follow Jesus the rest of her life.

Joanna is one of the women who carried myrrh to anoint Jesus after He was crucified, and one of the first to hear that Jesus had risen from the dead. She was one of the 120 who chose Matthias to be Apostle in place of Judas Iscariot.

Later, she traveled with Saint Paul and was imprisoned with him, and he spoke highly of her. John Chrysostom called Joanna and the other myrrh-bearing women as "more spirited than lions, sharing with the Apostles their labors for the Gospel's sake."

We celebrate the feast of the myrrh-bearing women on May 4th this year. St. Joanna (known as Junia in Greek circles) has her own feast day on June 27th. The head of St. John the Baptist is one of our most treasured relics, with three feast days dedicated to its finding!

I SPY IN MY LITTLE ICON

By Kim Fritzges

Our Icon this month is the Myrrh Bearing Women. What is a myrrh bearing woman? Myrrh is an oil or ointment that was used to anoint or embalm the dead along with other spices. So a myrrh bearing woman is a woman who is bearing or carrying myrrh. The title myrrh bearing women is given to eight women who followed Jesus in the Bible:

Mary, the Theotokos or Virgin Mary

Mary Magdalene

Joanna

Salome

Susanna

Mary the wife of Cleophas

Mary of Bethany

Martha of Bethany

In our icon we see three of these women. The one in the rear is holding a container called an alabastron. The myrrh would have been in this container. Another of the myrrh bearers is holding a long handled censer for burning incense. She would have brought this to cense the tomb.

An angel of God, in white shining robes seated on the tomb's lid, is pointing to the tomb in the cave that is empty except for Jesus' burial clothes known as his shroud.

The women arrived at the tomb very early in the day. Imagine their surprise when they arrived and not only saw an Angel of God sitting there but also an empty tomb! The Angel told them to not be afraid, asked them why they looked for Jesus among the dead, and to go tell the disciples what had happened at the tomb: Jesus had Risen!

Troparion (Tone 2)

Verily, the angel came to the tomb and said to the ointment-bearing women,

"The ointment is meet for the dead,

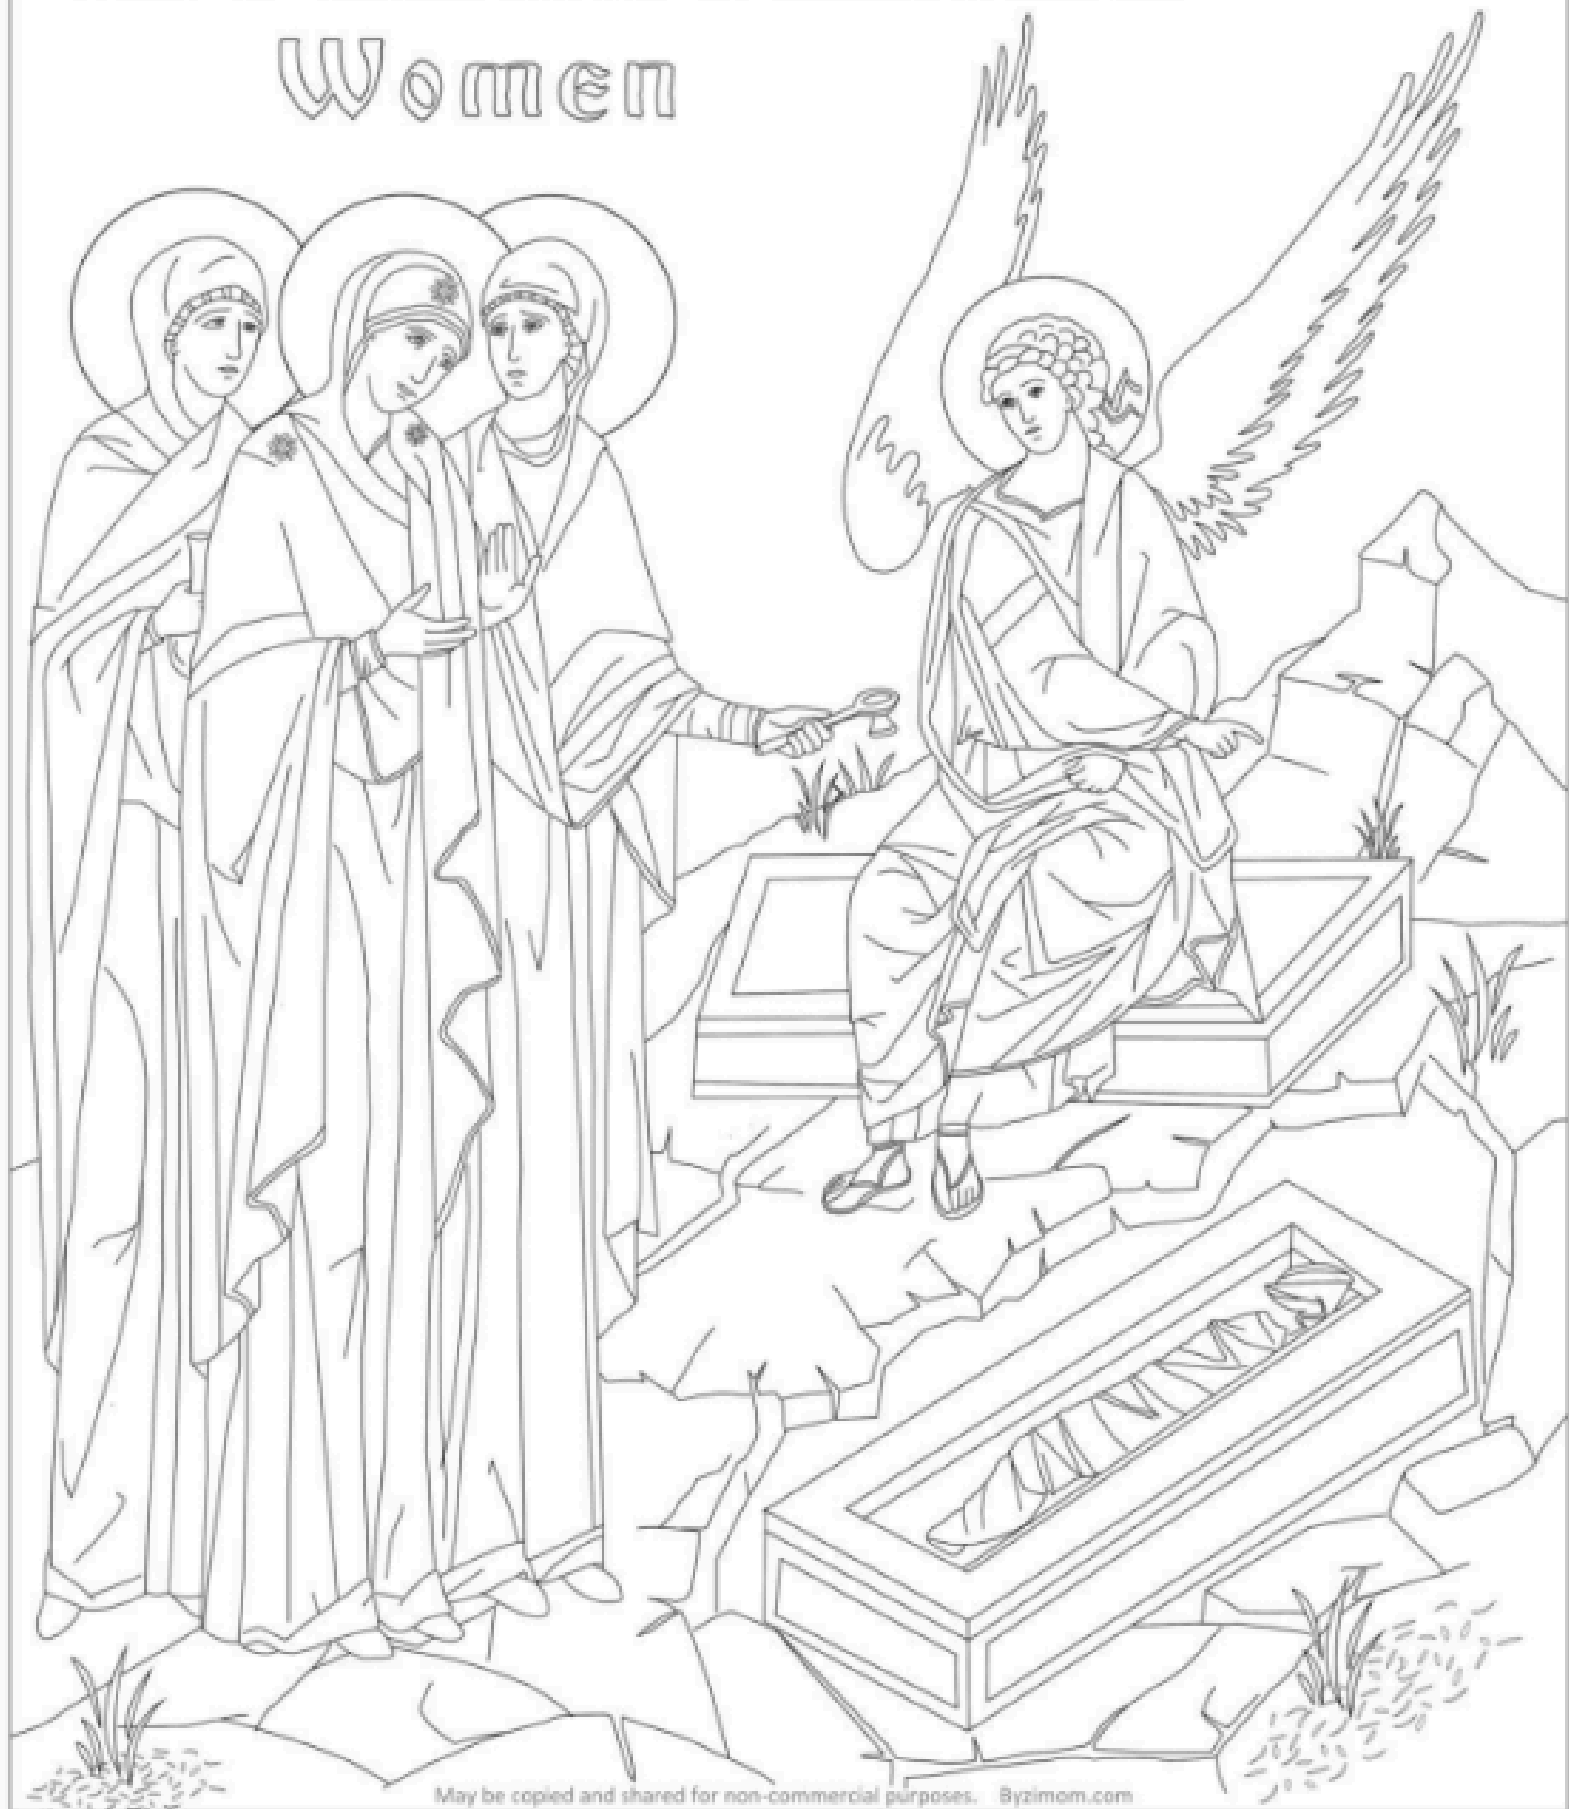

But Christ is shown to be remote from corruption.

But cry ye, "the Lord is risen, granting the world the Great Mercy."

Christ is Risen! Indeed He is Risen!

Special thanks to Fr. Innocent Neal at Holy Trinity Church in Wilkes Barre, PA for allowing us to use the Myrrh Bearing Women icon.

MEANWHILE, BACK IN BYZANTIUM

St. Athanasia of Aegina

Have you heard of Saints working miracles of healing? I'm sure you have, there are many Unmercenary Healers (healing for no payment) in our faith. Saints Cosmas and Damien, St. Hermione, and St. Luke the Surgeon are just a few. Have you also heard of Saints who worked miracles of healing with their relics or at their tomb sites after they reposed? Some even stream sweet smelling myrrh or fragrances. This tells us the person was truly Holy and loved the Lord.

St. Athanasia was both a healer in life and so were her relics after her repose in 860 AD. Born to pious parents, Nicetas and Marina in Greece, her favorite thing to study was the Psalter. As a youth, while weaving at her loom, St. Athanasia saw a shining star come down and as it touched her heart it created a bright shining light and then disappeared. From that moment, she knew she would enter a monastery.

However, because of the local culture and also a call from the Byzantine Emperor, she was expected to marry. St. Athanasia respected her parent's wishes and married not once, but twice. She was first widowed and then her second husband after years of faithful prayer and fasting in their home, entered a monastery. After his death, the saint gave away her property, became a nun, and founded a women's monastery. The sisters asked St. Athanasia to become the abbess after they had served together for four years. St. Athanasia wore a hair-shirt, acted humbly with the sisters she was in charge of, slept very little, and helped the poor who came to the monastery. Because of her faith and dedication to remove her passions, St. Athanasia was granted the gift of healing by God. After she healed a man's eyes, a crowd of people came to her to receive healing from their physical and spiritual illnesses. From the gifts brought to the monastery by those being healed, she built three churches at the monastery: one dedicated to the Most Holy Theotokos, another to the holy Prophet John the Forerunner, and a third to Saint Nicholas the Wonderworker.

However, she did not like the constant attention and wished to live more humbly again, and so she took the two sisters closest to her in spirit (Maria and Eupraxia) and went secretly to Constantinople. She didn't stay hidden for long though, as her holiness attracted both the sick and those in leadership. She even served as an advisor to Empress Theodora II. After 7 years, she returned to the monastery on Aegina.

St. Athanasia fell asleep in the Lord on August 14, 860 in Timia, Greece on The Feast of the Dormition of the Theotokos. May she heal us in body and soul!

Miracles and visions of the saint appeared to the nuns who prayed for the soul of the reposed St. Athanasia. A year after the saint's death, the nuns brought a woman possessed with a demon to the grave. When they dug up the ground, they then noticed a fragrance and removed the coffin. After she touched the coffin, the demoniac was immediately healed. Then they opened the lid of the coffin and saw the saint's incorrupt body, from which myrrh flowed. The priests decided to place her body in church. The holy relics of Saint Athanasia were put into a crypt and became a source of healing to those who visited the monastery.

St. Athanasia is celebrated on April 12th in Slavic Churches and April 18th in Greek Orthodox Churches.

Myrrhbearers' Spicy, Aromatic Sugar Scrub

Scripture tells us that there were many women who followed Christ throughout His ministry, attending to His household needs, and those of His disciples.

Following the example of His Blessed Mother, they provided him with loving care while He proclaimed God's word.

The Theotokos was known to have made him beautiful seamless garments, and was said to have done sewing in order to help provide for the Child Jesus.

Mary of Bethany sat at His feet and listened to His heartfelt message while Martha cooked meals for Him and for His disciples.

Johanna Chuza and Susannah took care of His earthly needs, and Mary Magdalen anointed His tired feet with oil to thank Him for the forgiveness of her sins.

Legend tells us that Veronica ran an inn for travelers and provided the disciples with refreshment and lodging and that she also provided the tableware for the Last Supper.

At the crucifixion, these women were the followers who remained to witness Jesus' death and console His mother. In return, they were the ones who were permitted to bear witness to His resurrection. The Myrrhbearers' role in the plan of salvation may look mundane and ordinary on the surface, much like the water in the stone jars at the wedding at Cana. Still, by offering those services to Christ with love and diligence, He has turned their small acts of loving kindness into the finest wine. With the Myrrhbearers as our example, we, as women of faith, are called to do exactly the same.

Ingredients

- 1 cup White Sugar
- 1 cup Brown Sugar
- 2 tsp Cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp Ground Cloves
- 1/2 tsp Ground Ginger
- Drop Orange or Frankincense Essential Oil (optional)
- 1 cup Olive oil
- 2 Glass Jars
- Decorative ribbon (optional)

Preparation

In a bowl, combine white sugar, brown sugar, cinnamon, cloves, ground ginger, and a few drops of essential oil, if desired.

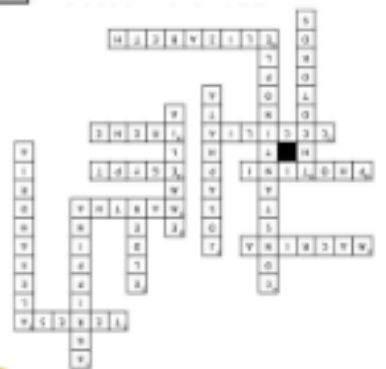

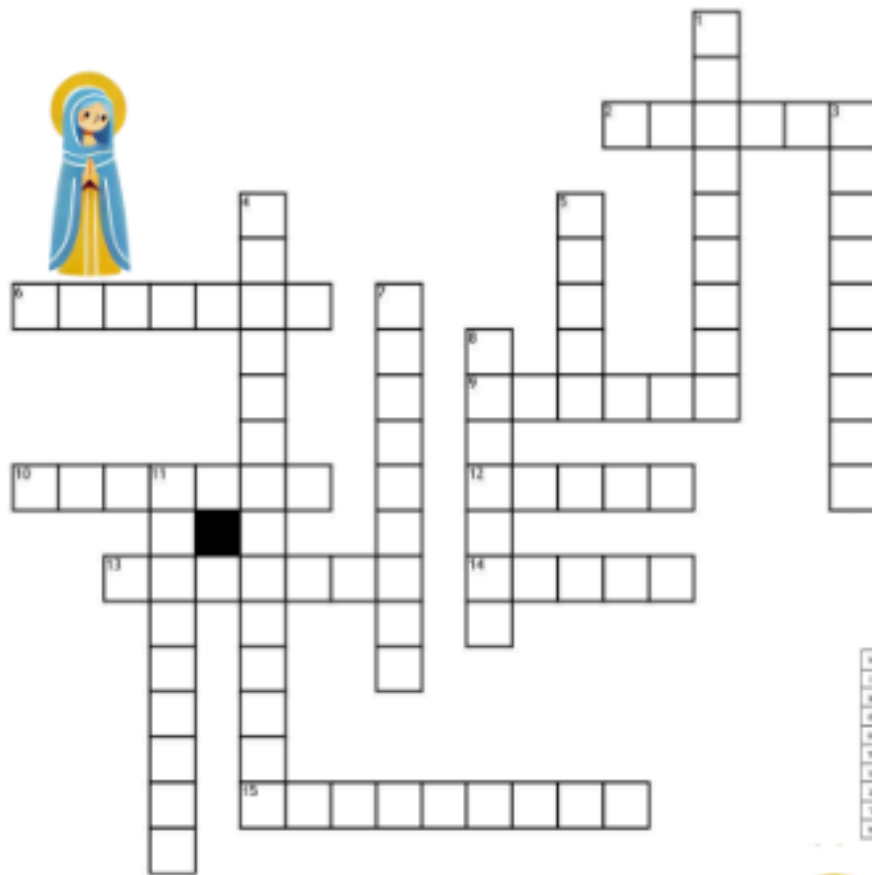

When this is well combined, add just enough olive oil to make it into a thick paste.

Put your scrub into clean glass jars, label them and add a decorative ribbon

Tips

You omit the spices and add different essential oils to make this special sugar scrub anytime!
